

"I'm glad a center like yours exists"

Dear Friend,

During the past thirty years we've often heard people tell us this.

Maybe you are one of those individuals who have said this to us or thought of saying it. Over the past three decades, tens of thousands of people, including perhaps you, former members, families, social workers, media, professionals, academics and even current members of groups, have used our services.

Or, you might never have had to take advantage of our services, but are nonetheless pleased that Info-Cult exists.

Info-Cult is a unique organization dealing with a subject that most people tend not to think about until a major event hits the media or unless they or someone close to them gets involved in a group that causes a family crisis.

We deal with requests for information on a multitude of subjects and help many groups and individuals on a daily basis. We consider each caller's situation to be unique, and so responding to each request can take a significant amount of time. We consider the time well spent and we have had those sentiments confirmed by those who have benefited from our services since 1980.

As a non-profit organization we count on the assistance of a number of volunteers who dedicate countless hours each year to Info-Cult.

In addition to the help of these volunteers, it is the financial support of donors such as you who play a vital role in making it possible for us to offer services to the community at large.

Once a year we appeal to your generosity and encourage you to continue supporting Info-Cult.

Thank you
